CoolDrive Distribution has introduced a new range of expansion tanks and overflow bottles to complement the existing range of cooling system and radiator products. These high quality tanks and bottles are sourced from a leading automotive manufacturer.

Normal failure mode is over pressurisation of the cooling system leading to expansion tank rupture. Other causes include frontal collision, age of the vehicle and heat which causes material breakdown leading to leakage.

CoolDrive is one of Australia's largest automotive parts distributors with a comprehensive range of automotive air conditioning, electrical, engine cooling, engine management and performance products

CoolDrive Distribution is 100 percent Australian owned and operated, and has 18 branches Australia wide.
